10 October 2017:

Title: How fungi shape the world around us

When: 7:00 pm

Where: Evangel Church, 3261 Gordon Drive, Kelowna

Speaker: John Klironomos

About the presentation: Fungi play critical roles in ecosystems, yet they are largely misunderstood. In this presentation I will describe three major “lifestyles” of the fungi and how they impact biodiversity, productivity, and stability in natural and managed landscapes.

About the speaker: John is a Professor of Biology at the UBC Okanagan campus. He teaches courses in ecology and mycology. His research program focuses on plant-fungal interactions in the context of global climate change, landscape restoration, and invasive species.

14 November 2017

Speaker: TJ Gooliaff

Subject: Bobcats and Lynx
